First Professional Baseball Club Formed in Cincinnati in 1869

National in importance is the celebration of baseball's centennial year. Baseball has been a vital part of the life of Americans since 1839. Pioneers in the development of professional baseball were a group of Cincinnati men who formed the first professional baseball club in 1869. The famous Red Stockings of 1869 (pictured on page 1), the first paid team to go on tour, did not lose a game throughout the entire season. They won 65 consecutive contests. The Cincinnati semi-pro club of 1868 and the professional club of 1869 and 1870 set a record that probably never will be equaled. From September, 1868, to June, 1870, the Reds played 130 games without a defeat. The string was snapped by the Atlantics on the Capitoline Grounds back of Brooklyn, N. Y., in 11 innings, 8 to 7. Approximately 20,000 people saw the game. Cincinnati is one of the charter members of the National League, formed in 1876. The Reds have been a member of the senior league consecutively since that time, excepting the period from 1881 through 1889.

Cincinnati also was the first major league team to play night baseball, inaugurating the advent of a new major league era on May 24, 1935, by defeating Philadelphia, 2 to 1.

Traditional in Cincinnati are the ceremonies connected with the opening game. Cincinnati is the only city in the major leagues whose fans make plans to attend the opening game months in advance. Regardless of the standing of the team the previous season, opening day, is usually an advance sell-out. Ticket orders for the 1940 opening already are on file in the Reds' office.

Interest in the Reds reached a new high in 1938, when the team rose from last to fourth place in the standings. A new all-time season's attendance record was set. Only New York and Chicago drew more people at home than did the Reds. This record came five years after a stormy period that resulted in a radical change in the club's financial and administrative setup. Late in 1933, after three successive last place finishes and financial reverses by the ownership, there was doubt whether the oldest professional baseball team in America could continue its membership in the National League. Complete reorganization and financing was necessary. The National League and the Central Trust Company of Cincinnati, with Thomas M. Conroy, the present secretary and treasurer, acting as executive officer during that period, effected a complete reorganization that culminated in 1934, with the control of the club being vested in the present president, Powel Crosley, Jr.

Present General Manager Warren C. Giles assumed his duties after the 1936 season, succeeding L. S. MacPhail, who joined the Reds during their stage of reorganization. Bill McKechnie took managerial control following the 1937 season.

The Reds now have a compact farm system. Five minor league teams are owned outright. They are: Durham of the Piedmont League, Columbia of the South Atlantic League, Waterloo of the Three-Eye League, Muskogee of the Western Association, Ogden of the Pioneer League. They have working agreements with Indianapolis of the American Association and Albany of the Eastern League. Their clubs have working agreements, or partnerships, with El Dorado of the Cotton States League, Erie of the Mid-Atlantic League, Bassett of the Bi-State League.

Officers and directors of the Cincinnati Baseball Club Co. are: President, Powel Crosley, Jr. (also president The Crosley Corporation); vice-president and general manager, Warren C. Giles; secretary and treasurer, Thomas M. Conroy (also vice-president and director The Central Trust Co.); Directors, Lewis Crosley (also vice-president The Crosley Corporation); Reamy Field (also chairman of the board, Field, Richards & Shepard, Inc.); David C. Jones (also vice-president and general manager, The Lunkenheimer Co.); Hon. Charles Sawyer (also attorney-at-law, member of firm Dinsmore, Shohl, Sawyer & Dinsmore; former Lieutenant-Governor, State of Ohio; candidate for Governor, State of Ohio, 1938 elections).

Executive personnel: Manager, William B. McKechnie; road secretary and promotion manager, Gabriel Paul; assistant to general manager, Frank C. Lane; assistant to treasurer, W. P. Bramham; ticket department, Harry Murdough; park superintendent, Mathias Schwab. Rhoderick J. Wallace is chief scout.

Facts About the 1939 Reds

Thirty-eight players are on the roster of the Reds. Tallest player is Jim Weaver, 6 feet 6 inches. He also is the heaviest, 230 pounds. Lightest, Einar Sorenson, 155 pounds; shortest, Stanley Bordagaray, 5 feet 7 inches; oldest, Nolen Richardson, 35; youngest, Charles Glock, 21.

Approximately three and a half tons of ball players will be in the Reds' camp. Average weight is 180 pounds. Average age is 25.79 years, and average height 5 feet 11 88/100 inches. Les Scarsella comes nearest to the average in all physical departments. He is 25 years of age, 6 feet tall, weights 185 pounds. Biographies:
